“ What do you say to a special person who was non judgmental. A person who you only met once but left an impression on your live. One who loved life. One who would take in animals who had no where to go. One who gave second chances. One who would see images in the clouds. One who would dream of the impossible. I will call her my Mom who taught me to stand up for myself. Who told me that there are people worse off then what we had and we should be grateful. She had a lot of fight all the way to the end and I could never thank her enough for the impact she had on my life.
